NEW BARRACKS AREA UNDER CONSTRUCTION, PETRINJA, YUGOSLAVIA (S)

1. (S/D) An unidentified reserve infantry brigade housed in four small barracks in the vicinity of Sisak and Petrinja will probably move into an installation under construction adjacent to Petrinja Explosives Storage (Figure 1). Because the new installation would provide increased vehicle storage, including storage for tracked vehicles, which is not available in the present barracks areas, it is possible that the brigade is being upgraded as well as moved. Petrinja is in the 5th Military Region, approximately 25 nautical miles southeast of Zagreb. 25X1

2. (S/D) The new installation was observed under construction on imagery of 25X1
Construction began after when no evidence of construction was seen. When 25X1 complete, the installation will consist of a barracks/administration area and three separately secured vehicle storage areas. The vehicle storage areas will have covered storage for at least 250 tracked vehicles or approximately 500 wheeled vehicles. The barracks/administration area will contain at least seven barracks and 18 other buildings. Training facilities will include a tank minirange, an automatic weapons firing range, and a chemical defense training site in the Petrinja Training Area adjacent to Petrinja Explosives Storage, and a small-arms firing range under construction in the new barracks/administration area. 25X1
